If the supply does not fulfil this obligation, the customer shall be authorized to have the packaging material collected and disposed of at the supplier's expense.

4.6 The customer shall be informed that the goods are ready for shipment at the customer's request. The supplier shall inform the customer immediately of any damage in transit.

4.7 The supplier undertakes to comply with the German Act Governing the Sale, Return and Environmentally Sound Disposal of Electrical and Electronic Equipment (ElektroG) and to discharge the obligations resulting from it for the customer and – if said obligations cannot be transferred – to help the customer fulfil them. 5. Delivery deadlines – Delay

5.1 The time of performance or delivery time specified in the order shall be binding. The time at which the goods are received by the customer shall determine whether binding delivery deadlines have been met. The supplier shall be obliged to notify the customer immediately in writing if circumstances arise, or become apparent to the supplier, which result in the delivery time or time of performance not being able to be adhered to. Neither said notification nor the failure of the customer to respond to it shall constitute acknowledgment of a new delivery date or affect the customer's contractual and statutory rights and claims.

5.2 If delivery times or times of performance are not adhered to, the customer shall be entitled to the statutory claims. In particular, the customer shall be entitled to demand damages and rescission of the contract after it has set a reasonable period of grace and the latter has expired without remedy. If the customer demands damages, the supplier shall have the right to prove to the customer that the supplier is not to blame for the breach of duty. Acceptance of the late delivery or service shall not constitute any waiver of claims for compensation.

5.3 If the supplier is in delay, the customer shall be authorized to demand a contract penalty of 0.5% of the order value of the delivery which the supplier is in delay in providing for each full week after the delay begins, but at most 5% of the total order value. In addition to a contract penalty, the customer can demand reimbursement for the damage caused by the delay. Any incurred contract penalty shall be offset in this case. Further claims and rights from delay shall be unaffected.

6. Prices – Invoicing – Payment

6.1 The prices are fixed prices and are not subject to subsequent change. 6.3 Unless otherwise agreed, the invoice shall be settled within 20 days with a cash discount of 3%, within 30 days with a cash discount of 2% or within 60 days without deduction. Said period of time shall commence from when both the invoice and the goods have been received by the customer or the services have been performed. Payments are made subject to reservation and do not constitute acceptance or acknowledgment that a service complies with the contract.

7. Obligations to inspect goods and lodge complaints

7.1 The supplier shall deliver goods that have undergone a complete inspection. After receiving the deliveries, the customer shall merely examine whether they match the ordered quantity and ordered type and whether there is externally visible damage in transit. The customer shall also undertake inspections on the basis of random sampling. In this regard, the supplier shall waive any further statutory requirements for incoming goods inspections.

7.2 If the customer discovers defects as part of its inspection of random samples, the customer shall be authorized to reject the entire delivery or, at its discretion, inspect the entire delivery and charge the resultant costs of this inspection to the supplier.

7.3 Defects shall be reported within 5 business days. In the case of apparent defects, this period of time shall commence upon handover of the goods and, in the case of defects that are not apparent, when the defect is discovered.

8.3 The supplier may make changes in the execution or quality of the services to be provided from the agreements concluded or from preceding services only if the customer has given its prior written consent to the change in question.

8.4 In cases of doubt, the supplier shall inquire as to the product's intended use or nature of the future processing.

8.5 Partial acceptance or processing of the supplied products or services shall not constitute acceptance of them without complaint. All claims for defects shall still be effective despite partial utilization or processing of the supplied products or services.

9. Claims for defects

9.1 The customer shall be entitled to the statutory claims for defects in full. In the event of defects, the customer can in each case demand, at its discretion, rectification of the defect or delivery of an object that does not have defects. The supplier shall bear the expenses required to remedy defects, in particular transport, travel, labor and material costs.

9.2 If (a) the customer has unsuccessfully set the supplier a reasonable period of grace to rectify the defect or deliver an object that does not have defects, (b) subsequent remedy fails, (c) is unreasonable, (d) is refused seriously and definitively by the supplier or (e) if there are special circumstances which, after weighing the interests of both parties, justify the further rights defined below being asserted, the customer shall be authorized to reduce the price to the ratio in which, at the time the contract was concluded, the value of the object in a state free of defects would have been relative to its actual value (reduction) or to rescind the contract. In each case, additionally or alternatively, the customer shall be authorized to demand reimbursement of the damage caused by delivery of the defective products, unless the supplier is not to blame for the breach of duty.

9.3 Claims for defects shall become statute-barred two years after the passage of risk, unless a longer period is provided for under the law or the customer has agreed a longer period of limitation with the supplier.

The claims shall also cover the costs of any recall.

10.2 The supplier shall also point out to the customer the risks of using its product in an unintended way.

13.1 The materials or products provided by the customer shall remain its property. They shall only be used as intended. Any combination, processing or mixing of the materials or products provided by the customer shall always be done on behalf of the customer as the manufacturer. If (joint) ownership elapses due to combination, processing or mixing of the materials or products, it is hereby agreed that (joint) ownership of the new object shall pass to the customer in proportion to the ratio of the value of the materials or products provided by the customer to the value of the overall product. The supplier shall hold the (jointly) owned objects of the customer in safekeeping free of charge.

13.2 All documents, plans, figures, calculations, drafts, manufacturing specifications, samples, drawings, etc. (hereinafter referred to jointly as "documents") provided by the customer to the supplier for the purpose of issuing an offer or fulfilling a contract shall remain the property of the customer. The supplier shall use the documents only as part of fulfilling the contract. 19. Place of jurisdiction – Place of performance – Applicable law

19.1 If the supplier is a merchant, the place of jurisdiction shall be the place of the customer's registered offices; however, the customer shall be authorized to take legal action against the supplier at the place of the latter's domicile.
